EDITORIAL.

Rev. C. M. Summers, of Louisa who preached here last Sunday, stated that he had never been treated so hospitably as by the people, OF ALL DENOMINATIONS, of Salyersville.

He could have said the same of the entire county, we believe, had he been over the county as ye editor has. Time works changes in people's manners and customs. The greed of gold often makes a people selfish, but we should be enabled to see our own good qualities and pride ourselves in the fact that we are known to be a most hospitable county, though some of us have a desire to possess the "filthy lucre."

Our whole county is very much like a large family where every member knows that the latch string always hangs on the outside. This fact causes many persons who seek and find wealth in other states to return to their native county.

Our hospitality, our mineral wealth, our possibility as a great fruit growing county and our heritage of the purest Anglo Saxon blood are some of the things that the MOUNTAINEER is striving to inform the outside world. Our greatest drawback at present is inefficient education. Our people are desirous of improving their schools but few have fully realized what could be accomplished during the next ten years if we were properly organized and stood together in one solid phalanx. The county superintendent must take the initiative in this great work. We fully believe that this is by far the most important office in the county. We again urge the voters of Magoffin to vote for the person who can lead and guide the educational forces of the county to victory. This is not saying that you should support the Editor of the Mountaineer, but it IS saying that you should let nothing deter you from voting for the candidate who will work unceasingly for the welfare of Magoffin's 5,000 school children. Will you do it? We believe so.

WARMING UP.

All who were in town last Saturday realized that the campaign has opened in earnest. Almost every candidate who had announced in the Mountaineer, as well as a number of others, were on the ground soliciting their friends to sign their petitions.

We have been assured by a number who have not announced in these columns that they will do so if they make the race that they are thinking of. In this way you will be enabled to know of the news of this campaign even if you are too busy to come to town every few days. Those who have already announced in the Mountaineer say that "It pays to advertise."

Ye Editor is indebted to John Gardner who suggested that we give the remedy for the tomato rot which has been so prevalent in this section for the last few years. Farmers' Bulletin No. 220 on "TOMATOES", which may be had on request from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., gives the following remedy for the tomato rot.

"Fruit-rot is combatted with more or less success by pruning and training vines to admit light and air, together with the destruction of all diseased fruits, to prevent the spread of infection."

THE PRINTER MAN

Whether it blows or whether it snows the season comes and the season goes; the crops get sick and the farmers blue—the storekeepers kick and the lawyers sue; the preachers preach and the sinners sin and care beset the souls of men. But through it all the printer prints; he saves and saves and stints and stints; the winds may rave and the floods may roll, and drouths break thru from pole to pole; but the printer man he prints and prints, saves and saves and stints and stints——happy, happy, printer man; he, does the very best he can—stickling type or twisting press, he trusts to luck and does his best.

—Exchange.

March 20 1913.

Dear folks:

Just received your letter and was glad to hear from you this leaves me well.

I wrote and told you about the flood I was on high ground and you bet I stayed on high ground.

There was lots of people drowned here and a big loss of property there were about 300 horses drowned here. I got your letter yesterday and thought it was useless to send you a message for I wrote and told you how it was.

There is lots of work here and will be until they get the town fixed up. I am working for an electric Co. and I get $2.50 a day for 9 hours a day but I do not know how long it will last.

Two men and I were working around an old drift and we found a 40 gallon barrel of whisky and we buried it, I will send you a jug full hal! hal! it is worth $75 or $100 but don't be uneasy about me for I won't drink much it washed there in the time of the flood.

Answer just as soon as you get this.

NOLA, BEULAH, AND SOLA,

THREE FUTURE KENTUCKY BELLES.

The above triplets of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Literal, of Conley this County were exhibited here on the first day of court. The parents have seven other children. The triplets are 26 months of age.

The above picture does not do the girls justice.

Dayton, Middletown, and Hamilton away. The houses were drifted in the streets like corn stalks in a common branch.

It is said to be as bad as John town flood the streets look like the bottom of a big creek, the pavements all washed up and holes washed out as big as a house. Tell Em the holes washed out in high street, and pavements all washed up and looks like the bottom of a dry creek. I can't tell you how bad it was. I am at Morge Gullett's and he said tell all his people he was safe. They have ordered soldiers here and they are making the people work to help clean up the town, I don't know if I will have to help or not. I am going to leave here as soon as I can, the Ohio river is up to 66 ft. raise and I can't get a way so I guess I will stay a while, I can get lots of work for a while here. You must answer soon.

OLD CHESTER.

Chester is about the same size city as Lexington, Ky. On Sunday afternoon we started for a walk and saw that the streets were jammed with pedestrians all going in the same direction. We could not imagine what the attraction could be as there seems to be no excitement to indicate a fire. We followed eagerly on and saw street cars creep along to avoid running over the people who were on the track.—These street cars seldom had more than one or two passengers on them.

When we reached the outskirts of the city we discovered the attraction was the fields. We were informed that the Englishman is a great admirer of the beauties of the country. The fields as far as we could see, were literally covered with romping children and their parents. When in a hurry they ride on a car, otherwise they do not.

We visited an old Roman bath house. The bath tub was simply a vault in the rock. We did not take a bath, because it looked so much like a grave. We were informed by our guide that it had not been used for a bath tub during the past few centuries.

Poor appetite is a sure sign of impaired digestion. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will strengthen your digestion and improve your appetite. Thousands have been benefited by taking these Tablets. Sold by Dr. M. C. Kash.

Do the Wicked Continue Sinning After Death?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON,
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"He that is righteous, let him do unrighteousness still; and he that is filthy, let him be made filthy still; and he that is righteous, let him do righteousness still; and he that is holy, let him be made holy still." Rev. 22:11, A. R. V.

Do the wicked cease sinning when they die? Probably the vast majority of those who ever consider this question without deep thought say they certainly do, for men are to render account to God for the deeds done in the flesh, and when a man dies his account is closed. Is it not wise to matter a little carefully?

Our thoughts are presented from the evangelical standpoint as to the nature, manifestation, and outcome of sin. The widely prevalent modern, though erroneous, view of sin makes it rather an advantage than a disadvantage, Adam's fall being upward rather than downward.

One of the first suggestions is that sin is self-perpetuating. It is a common saying that one sin leads to another—that sin follows sin somewhat automatically. Sin, however, is not to be considered as consisting chiefly in outward transaction, but in the motive that is behind it. When a man dies his personality with its stamped character continues, and reason would say that his course of action with respect to the moral law is to continue. Professor Denney says: "The very conception of human freedom involves the possibility of its permanent misuse, or what our Lord himself calls 'eternal sin.'"

The punishment of sin is not today held up before the transgressor, but rather the sin itself. Is not the sin really the great evil? It may be said that if a man can cease from sin outwardly in this life, sin may not become permanent. But this ceasing from sin is by almighty power alone, and this power is denied after death. If it is further said that man by the mere force of his own will can cease from sin, we reply that the ceasing is only in the outward manifestation, and not in the real sinning, which belongs to the motive.

Meager light is thrown on the activity of the wicked after death, but we know the scripture teaches that men who die in sin go to dwell with the devil and his angels. What is the employment of the devil? Does any one who believes in a personal devil believe that he does not continue to sin? Is he not intensely active, the instigator of all the cruelty, oppression, wars, abominations, lies and wretchedness in the universe? If so, what about those whom scripture calls his children? Jesus said they do the deeds of their father, and are they any less children after death than before?

There is no evidence that after death there is a cessation from sin if we consider the employment or experiences of the inhabitants of the other world. As to heaven, about which we know much more than about hell, we learn the employment of the righteous. There is no intimation of sinning, there is consequently no gospel preaching, mission work, social regeneration, or anything of that kind, but the inhabitants of heaven are engaged in the praise of God, in worshiping him in his glorious majesty, and doing his behests whatever they may be. In the text we read that he that is righteous is to do righteousness still, and he that is holy, is to be made more holy. Some one might say, "If the conditions in this life have tendency to perpetuate themselves, will not Christians who show imperfection by sinning, continue to show their imperfection in heaven in the same way?" We might admit that if we did not have the direct teaching of scripture that there is no sin in heaven, nothing that defiles, that works abomination or makes a lie. From analogy we would conclude from the employment of the inhabitants of heaven, the employment of the wicked will be unrighteous or sinful.

The teaching of scripture, though not abundant, seems to be clear. Jesus said (Mark 3:29, A. R. V.) that if a man sin against the Holy Ghost he shall be guilty of an eternal sin. This certainly teaches that there is at least one eternal sin, a sin that continues in action forever. Revelation 22:11 seems to leave the matter beyond dispute, and it is well to observe that this teaching comes at the very close of the Bible. "He that is unrighteous let him do unrighteousness still, and he that is filthy, let him be made filthy still." The marginal reading suggests the phrase "yet more" for the word "still" in each case. Here, certainly, the employment of the wicked is clearly presented.

What a sad fate, doomed to eternal sinning! The only escape is to have the motive to sin removed by the indwelling life of Christ. Then the habit of doing righteousness will establish the character that does righteousness, and the future is safe.

Should Be Those From Year Old Birds, as Chicks Will Be Larger and Stronger Than Those From Pulletts.

(By A. J. WILDER.)

Care should be taken to save for settings only the eggs from the best hens. A very great difference can be made in a flock in a few seasons by the selection of the eggs for hatching.

By choosing the largest eggs the fowls will be much larger in size, but there is a great probability that they will not be good layers. The hen that lays an unusually large egg is quite likely to lay only every other day.

By setting her eggs and again the next season setting the largest eggs, you will develop a strain of large fowls that will lay very large eggs, but will lay only every other day, or even less.

On the other hand, if you set the eggs from the hens, that as pullets laid during their first fall and winter, and continue to set eggs from such hens, you will develop a strain of hens that eat the fastest get very little of the oats.

The eggs for settings should be from year old hens, as the chicks will be larger and stronger than those from pullet eggs. It is best to mate cockerels instead of old cocks with these hens, as the eggs are more apt to be fertile and there will be a larger percentage of pullets.

Choose the medium sized, well shaped eggs and be sure the shell is firm and strong. A weak shell is sure to be broken, and, besides the loss of the egg itself, will likely ruin several of the other eggs in the nest and may even teach the hen to break and eat them.

Feed the hens a little air slackened lime in the mash to give the eggs a good strong shell. Be sure the lime is well slackened and give two tablespoonsful to 100 hens every day.

Do not force the breeding stock for egg production. Feed them mostly whole grain, wheat, oats, corn and barley. Let the mash be a light feed and give them fresh sweet meat scraps twice a week.

Feed plenty of green food, unless the fowls have range where they can find it for themselves. Keep them supplied with pure, clean drinking water and have charcoal, grit, oyster shell and dry bone always before them.

Don't forget a little salt in the mash. It should always be salted as much as the same quantity of food would be for the table.

The hens must be made to exercise by scratching for their grain in the litter. They must be healthy and in good condition if you are to raise strong, healthy chicks.

A diseased condition of the hen is transmitted to the egg and will appear in the chick when hatched.

Protection for Trees.
Some orchardists have been successful in protecting their trees by smearing the trunks near the ground with mixtures which are distasteful to rabbits. For this purpose whitewash, a mixture of glue and copperas, decoction of quassia chips and blood or grease, have been used. Mechanical protection by means of some wrapping is more permanent and effective than any form of wash.

Effect of Animal Husbandry.
Live stock make it necessary to diversify crops and grow more crops upon which there is a wider margin of profit. Animals also distribute labor, furnish employment in time of bad weather, or when field work is not possible. Animal husbandry is the logical way to insure soil improvement, as the increased fertility from manure is often sufficient to justify raising animals.

Converted Wagon.
From the standpoint of convenience, the farm wagon that has been made over into a low-down vehicle with wide steel tires has a strong appeal. It is easily loaded, and overcomes all the objections to high wagons of the old type.

Hearty Eaters.
All cows that are hearty eaters are not profitable producers, but all profitable producers are usually hearty eaters.

PROPER FEED FOR THE HENS

Varied Diet Necessary for Best Results From Layers—Dry Mash Always Before Fowls.

A method which has given very satisfactory results for the American breeds has been worked out by Prof. J. C. Graham of the Massachusetts Agricultural college. A dry mash is kept in hoppers before the hens at all times and a scratch feed is fed night and morning. The dry mash is composed of equal parts bran, wheat middlings, corn meal, finely ground oats, ground alfalfa and beef scraps, and the scratch feed of two parts cracked corn, one part wheat and one part oats, says the Farm and Home.

The scratch feed is varied, depending somewhat upon the condition of the hens. If on examination they are found too fat more oats and wheat and less corn are fed. Sometimes we feed three parts of corn to two parts of wheat at night and oats in the morning.

At certain seasons of the year more grain is fed at night in the litter than the hens will eat, so there will be some left for them to work on early the next morning. This is found to be a very satisfactory method. At times oats are fed alone, for when the three are mixed together the wheat and corn are picked up first and the hens that eat the fastest get very little of the oats.

It is desired to force the hens, in addition to the dry mash and grain, moisten some of the mash, getting it to a crumbly state and placing it in troughs, what they will eat in 15 minutes. This is fed at night. Fresh water, oyster shell and grit are kept before the hens. Mangels and cabbages are fed whole every day when possible, but at least three times a week.

BIG FACTOR IN INCUBATION

Lack of Ventilation Given as Cause for Many Failures in Artificially Hatched Eggs.

The question of the cause or causes of the lower hatching percentage that commonly characterizes artificial incubation when compared with results obtained when eggs are set under hens is a matter about which there is considerable conjecture, but little definite knowledge. In connection with various theories that have been advanced and several experiments that have been made, it is perhaps suggestive that investigators have recently inclined to the opinion that unsatisfactory results are probably due in greater measure than is generally supposed to an excess of ventilation.

Several authorities are mentioned in support of the statement that there is a larger amount of carbon dioxide in the air surrounding the eggs that are naturally hatched than in a well ventilated incubator, and the question is raised as to whether and to what extent it may be an essential factor in incubation.

MAKING TRAP FOR RABBITS

Full Directions Given for Construction and Materials Required—Use Apple on Trigger.

In response to a query for directions to make a rabbit trap, Herbert L. Doty makes the following reply in the Rural New Yorker:

Material required: Sides, two pieces, 2 feet by $\frac{3}{4}$ inch; bottom, one piece, 2 feet by $9\frac{1}{2}$ inch; top, one piece, Box Trap.

9 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch; back, one piece, 2 feet by 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ inch. In the picture T, trigger about 10 inches long; B, brace which fits in notch at N; P, wooden pin used as hinge at X. After box is constructed from material given above, bore a hole in the back a little larger than the trigger; take a stout nail, fasten it at S, draw through notch at R, and tie to center of brace. Stick an apple on trigger, as shown in cut, and the trap is ready for the rabbit.

Don't forget a little salt in the mash. It should always be salted as much as the same quantity of food would be for the table.

The hens must be made to exercise by scratching for their grain in the litter. They must be healthy and in good condition if you are to raise strong, healthy chicks.

A diseased condition of the hen is transmitted to the egg and will appear in the chick when hatched.

Save the Early Layers.
Hens that lay but few eggs are animal weeds. If we breed from them they are more than likely to yield daughters that will be weeds also.

Farmers and small poultrymen who cannot afford to use trap nests can pick out the pullets in September and October that are about commencing to lay, and save a pen of them for next season's breeders.

The pullets that commence laying early usually continue to lay well.

In this way most of the weeds can be kept out of the breeding pen.

Halter-Breaking Colt.

Never let a colt grow to any considerable age and size without halter-breaking him. Hundreds of valuable young horses are much injured in disposition by letting him run until they are two and three years of age, and then for the first time cornered in a stall by several farm hands, which may be a frolic to the latter, but quite contrary to the former.

A BOY INTERPRETER

A Young Massachusetts Swede in Canada Twenty Years Ago Wants to Return.

Twenty years ago, a blond-haired young Swede, a boy of about 10 years of age, accompanied a party of his fellow-countrymen on the then long trip to Western Canada as an interpreter. The party he accompanied located at Wetaskiwin, Alberta, now one of the most thriving and best settled districts in Western Canada. For three years he remained in the district. Homesickness took him back to his home at Fitchburg, Mass., and he has remained there for 17 years. He has heard frequently from his friends in the West. He has followed their movements and watched their progress. He has heard how the town he helped to establish has risen from a shack to a growing, thriving, brisk business center, with the surrounding country people now by thousands who are occupying the territory in which he was one of the first to help plant the colony of twenty or twenty-five. In his letter to an official of the Department of the Interior, he says:

"When I was up in Canada, Calgary was a small town and so was Edmonton, but I understand they have grown wonderfully since."

The young man when he went last learned a machine trade, he has patents and inventions but he wants to go to Canada again. And he likely will, but when he does he will find a greater change than he may expect. Calgary and Edmonton are large cities, showing marvelous and wonderful growth. Where but one line of railway made a somewhat tortuous and indefinite way across the plains to its mountain pass, there are three lines of railway dividing the trade of hundreds of thousands of farmers, carrying freight to the hundreds of towns and cities crossing and criss-crossing the prairies in all directions, reaching out into new settlements, and preceding districts to be newly opened for incoming settlers. He will not be able to secure a homestead unless at a considerable distance from the town, the three dollar an acre land is selling at $15 to $25 an acre. He will find now what was but a theory then, that this land that was then $3 an acre is worth the $30 or $35 that may be asked for it, and a good deal more. But he will find that he can secure a homestead just as good as any that were taken in his day, and today worth $35 an acre, but at some distance from a line of railway, yet with a certainty of railway in the near future, and he will find too that he can still get land at $15 to $18 an acre that will in a year or two be worth $30 or $35 an acre. Mr. Moseley is talking to his countrymen about Canada. Advertisement.

WILLOW SWITCHES Given Away.
The small boy whose father has time to apply the switch should beware with a little more than his usual caution. The United States government is giving away willow switches.

The department of agriculture has an experiment farm at Arlington, Va., and some parts of it were found to be too wet for raising ordinary crops. Therefore the experts set willows out in the wet places, and there has been so smart a growth that the government wants to get rid of the willow switches. It offers to give them away under the guise of willow cuttings to make baskets or bottom chairs, but no smart boy will ever be deceived by that kind of talk. He may be safe only in the assurance of the government that only one hundred of the cuttings will be given to one person.

RURAL TEACHERS BODY OF TRAMPS

Dr. Claxton Says They Change
Districts Too Often.

RESULTS IN POOR TEACHING

Problem Must Be Solved if Real Strong Work Is to Be Done in Country Districts—Is Hurting Children's Chances. Just a Question or Two.

In a recent address at Louisville, Ky., Dr. P. P. Claxton, commissioner of education for the United States, stated that the rural teachers constituted the greatest body of tramps known. Over 50 per cent of them move to a new district each school year.

Don't take Dr. Claxton's word for it. Think of all the rural districts you know and see how close his assertion comes to fitting your own and your neighbor's situation on the teacher question. The main reason for so much poor teaching in the country districts is that the teacher does not stay long enough in any one locality to know either the children or their parents. If it is as difficult as it is for you to manage your child after having it with you every day during its whole life, how can the average teacher do even creditable work when she absolutely does not know your children? She merely has got a nodding acquaintance with them; she can call them by name.

This is every man's problem as well as the teacher's problem. It must be solved if we are to have real strong work done. What will you do with it? It is what is hurting your child's chance for an education that is worth while.

IS THE STOVE IN THE SCHOOL AS MODERN AS YOUR WIFE'S GASOLINE RANGE?

K. E. A.

Kentucky's greatest educational gathering has just closed at Louisville where a four day session was held of the K. E. A. The two State Normals with their 1500 teachers and students (The students preparing to teach) turned out in masses. Thousands of trustees, teachers and friends of education throughout the State attended to hear leading educators from all parts of America.

Magoffin was represented by Miss Mae Hurt, of Irvton and Curtis Reed and Willie Williams, who were attending the Eastern State Normal. Every teacher and trustee of Magoffin should begin NOW to plan to attend this great meeting which will be held at Louisville next spring. (Railroad fare at half rate.)

When we attend such meetings we get new ideas and new inspiration by seeing what great things are being done in other parts of Kentucky and other States. We then begin with a new determination to do something worth while in our own county. A goodly number of the counties of Kentucky are represented by their County superintendents and teachers and why can not Magoffin "wake up?" Our schools would be greatly benefited thereby.

SOME "FLY" INFORMATION.
Where is the fly born? In nature and filth.

Where does the fly live? In all kinds of filth and he carries filth on his feet and wings.

Where does the fly go when he or she leaves the manure pile or spittoon? He goes into the kitchen, the dining room and the store.

What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and vegetables; he wipes his feet on the butter and he bathes in the milk.

Does the fly visit patients sick with consumption, typhoid fever, and cholera infantum? He does, and he may call on you next, carrying the infection of these diseases.

What diseases does he fly carry? Typhoid fever, consumption, diarrhoeal diseases, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and, in fact any communicable disease—Blue Grass Farmer.

A SUGGESTION.

The following was written for the Mountaineer by a man who expects to do some developing in Magoffin this season.

No doubt most every one in Magoffin Co. know there is quite a little movement in regard to oil development and a number of men out taking leases. It is an evident fact this is necessary before there can be any operating. The one point to bear in mind is who is the right party to let have your lease. Most every lessor has a very plausible story and his proposition looks good. Now the thing is to try to be reasonably sure he is not a speculator on leases. One way I would suggest is to ask yourself, "what visible signs has this man of proving his earnestness? Has he made any preparation to develop? Has he paid any rental, or has he or the parties he represents any visible means of filling his part of the contract?"

The speculator usually is a man who is not familiar with leasing and will offer most any inducement and make many verbal agreements to do many things which are out of reason for oil companies who are securing leases for operating usually have but one way to take a lease and every one receives the same contract and proposition and don't favor any one individual and when rentals come due they pay them up as agreed to.

It is perfectly right to lease your land for development, for only way for the land owners to get his share is to lease to some reputable company for development and receive his check without any cost to him at all. The one point is try and lease to the company who has shown they are in good faith and have the money to fulfill their part of the contract.

You will notice that representatives of regular Oil Companies are not envious of each other but on the other hand they will give aid when it is practical.

It is the speculator who delays development and does harm to the land owner as well as the Oil Companies.
